

Family Communication: Considerations for Teams

- Are there particular concerns family members have regarding diagnosis or identification?
- Are there particular concerns family members have regarding what services will be provided or how they will be provided?
- Are there particular cultural or religious concerns to be considered in designing or implementing services?
- Are there culturally based differences of opinion, or other differences of opinion, between parents and other team members about identification or services?
- Are there particular language considerations that could impact parents' participation in designing or implementing services?
- What staff members are best positioned to help the team address these concerns effectively?
- How can we ensure these team members are available to participate in meetings and discussions?
